SYNOPSIS

London, 1890, Literary failure, Geoffrey Tempest, has lived a life that was filled with pain, poverty and disappointments until he's left with only one choice, curse God and die.

Then he inherits a fortune from a distant relative and with his wealth comes the intimate courtship of the charming Prince Lucio Rimanez, a man of unprecedented wealth and unknown origins. Together they form an alliance and under the mentoring of the prince he climbs up the English social ladder. Life seems like a bed of roses until tragedy struck.

Devastated by the unfaithfulness and suicide of the woman he loved, he sets out with the Prince on a voyage that leads to terrifying discoveries of the old gods in the land of Egypt. Stranded in mid-Atlantic aboard the devil's vessel and caught in the middle of a war between the legion of hell against the forces of nature, Geoffrey must face and overcome life-threatening odds when he discovers the sinister nature of the power that had compassed his destiny.

That power whom he fondly calls Lucio, whom the angels once knew as Lucifer, prince of light, and whom mortals call Satan, prince of darkness.
